DANGER IN DELAY

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Norway People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer is fully informed. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Norway.

M. M. Gilgore, living on Danforth St., Norway, Me., says: "I do not think there is a kidney remedy equal to Doan's Kidney Pills. I suffered from backache and pains through my joints for some time. My kidneys were in a very much deteriorated condition and the secretions acted in an unusual manner. At times my back would be so lame and sore that I could scarcely stand on my feet. I did not rest well at night and I felt generally miserable. At last I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured them from Stone's drug store. This remedy cured me of the trouble and I have felt well in every way since. I keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house at all times and recommend them whenever I hear of any one suffering from kidney trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

Lines to an Inflated Cranium.

I know him well and see him oft, Nor of necessity is he "tough." Although his weakness is enough to make one sick as one can ever be at sight of him the toughest tough we see. His hat is small. A size or two too small for him like me or you. As once on our commissary said, "This man's head is like a barrel." "Would it fit our mutual friend right soon Who listens always to his hat band's tune. 'Tis known by all, a patent fact, 'Tis it is to use his hat." In society, he's a bore. One takes of said nothing more: Swelled head still swelling, there's no doubt of that. He hears the band that's running round his hat. Which is: "A man as drunk as sin Will sober up, while fools remain." Pools all their lives." And then again I heard of "swelled head" say with truth quite a great deal.

He hears no noises save the band that stretches (?) 'round his hat."

Summer Soldiers' Veteran Association. The annual meeting was held at the Congregational church, East Summer, Wednesday, August 26th. The church was well filled and the time fully taken up with songs, life and drum solos and remarks by the comrades. Among those not members who made interesting remarks were Rev. A. W. Fottle of Buckfield, Rev. C. H. Prince, J. F. Farrard, H. D. Irish, A. F. Warren of Buckfield, W. S. Robinson of Hartford, J. A. Noyes of Portland, and others.

The musical selections by the local choir directed by organist Ernest Stearns of Springfield, Mass., were well rendered and appropriate.

A fine dinner was served free in the vestry by the loyal patriots and ladies of the vicinity. An interesting feature to the old veterans was the fire and drum music by Comrades Billy Bridgman of Lewiston and A. F. Warren of Buckfield. Both these veterans furnished martial music in the war, and the time of their enlistment were mere boys.

The next annual meeting will be held at Canton on the last Wednesday in August, 1903.

The officers elect are:—L. C. Abbott, president; Rollo Barrows, vice president; George H. Barrows, vice president; Sharon Robinson, secretary and treasurer; committee on arrangements for the next meeting, Thomas Farrar, George Moore and L. L. Kilbreth of Canton.

When to Pick Apples.

We quote from one of the best apple-growers as to the best time for picking the fruit:—

"Let the apples hang on the trees just about as long as they will hang there without getting mellow. When an apple ceases to grow, it is going to loosen at the stem and drop. As long as an apple is growing, it takes on a better quality. It has been proved that that apple will keep longer than one which is picked before it matures. That is what we want. We have been making two pickings on the tree as a general thing, and sometimes as many as three pickings. It will pay to pick over your apples twice, because you can go in that orchard and find some apples ripen faster than others, some varieties ripen more unevenly than others. It will pay to pick only the ripe apples and leave the green ones on the trees, and let them grow ten days or two weeks, or even three weeks. You will find some apples ripen sooner than others on the same tree. We go over them and pick off the ripest and largest and leave all the little green ones on the tree. Then, when we come to pick them, we find that the apples that we left on the tree are almost as good as the first picking. You find it is the same way with peaches, do you not? With summer apples it is just the same way. I know several people who began this practice, and they will not any more think of picking all the apples at one time now than the peach growers in Maryland would think of picking all their peaches at one time."

"Our land is hilly, and when we pick our apples we take a table right into the orchard and pack them there, because we could not haul them to a central packing shed out there in that hilly land. We use a table not so very wide. I keep men standing right there, or women, as the case may be, and they do the grading right there. We make two or three barrels. The barrels are nailed in the orchard. We make the nailing at the barn better than in the orchard. When the barrel is faced, we shake it after every basketful is put in, and the apples in it will stay tight long afterwards. We do not put anything in the barrel but No. 1 fancy apples, two and one-half inches in diameter, and larger—nice, smooth apples of good color and normal appearance, and no wormy, scabby or green ones are allowed to go in there at all. These barrels are marked in blue, 'Fancy'—grown by—"

"The worms ones and some others that have a little scab on them, we put in still another barrel and mark it in black or some other color, and the stamp reads, 'Beauty grown by—' but is not given a design or grade, and thus we avoid cheating anybody by selling a barrel containing defective apples when they expected No. 1 grade."

"The only difference then between your 'Fancy' and your 'Choice' is the size?" was asked.

"Yes, sir; both are sound and of good color and no scabby nor wormy apples are put into either, and all disfigured apples are put in another grade. We generally put in some wormy apples, some scabby ones and mark them 'Beauty,' and put my name there, so they can take that if they please; and we have some that are not good enough for barreling. We have a good local market where people like to buy these things for making apple butter or making apple sauce at a cheap price."

A running fire of questions followed from which we quote:

"I want to know what precautions are taken out in the orchards to prevent apples from getting bruised. We can not get the labor to do the work properly."

"We have common labor. Most of the people live in their own homes around there. They grow their own vegetables and garden truck. We have not been handicapped much with the labor question. We have to pay wages to compete with the shops. I watch them and as not to bruise the fruit."

"Do I understand that your apples are not much bruised when they are poured on the table?"

"They are not much bruised as we keep the table padded. A man from the Department of Agriculture came out to my place to examine how badly apples were bruised, and he decided that he believed it was better to pack them in the orchard than it was to take them to a central packing house and handle them two or three times."

"How do you pick your apples in?"

"One-half bushel baskets. We take a leather strap and cut it in the strap at each end, and loop one end around an iron hook and the other over the handle."

"You do not have two handles to them then?"

"No, we use one-handed baskets made there in the community by a local man."

"What would you think of a man having them piled in the sack?"

"I have never seen sacks. They say it will bruise the apples more than I do, and I believe that is the case. You may be able to pick a few more, but I do not believe it is the best."

"Do you have each packer put his initials on the package so that you can hold him responsible?"

"We use only one crew as a general thing in our orchards, and I stay around there and look after the business myself. I have always done so, but I expect we will need to have two or three crews in the future; but we try to keep out every apple in which we see a sign of a worm. A good handler of apples can just grab them up and pick them out when about all are good. You do not have to turn them over."

"Do you put them immediately into old storage?"

"Yes, sir; we have a man to haul the empty barrels into the orchard, and he takes a load of the full barrels and goes right back to the barn and deposits it at the barn, so that the wagons that haul them to market or station for storage can just load up right at the barn, because they could not pull a full load of apples out of the orchard. I am satisfied that the barrel ought to be drawn in out of the weather as quickly as possible."

BRYANT'S FOND.

The proposed hotel.

The most prominent topic now under consideration here is the prospect of a new hotel. A stock company is soon to be organized and subscriptions are now being taken for a plant that will cost, when completed, around $12,000.

The necessity of this venture makes it a proposition that appeals to all citizens of the town. The travelling public demands it, and a guarantee, also from the numerous people who desire to pass the summer seasons here in our midst, would seem surely to warrant its success as a business venture.

No one will question the assertion that a summer hotel must be a decided advantage and a very welcome improvement to the village as it stands to-day. A modern house erected on the old site must make better and add much to the appearance of the place, besides enhancing, in a large measure the value of all property.

Visitors who come here from different parts of the country are lavish in their praise of the place and its surroundings as a summer resort.

It is acknowledged by people who travel that Bryant Pond or Lake Christoforo is a fine place to stand to-day. The sheets of water that lays among the New England hills.

The location of this lake is all in its favor and there is not a spot that equals it on the Grand Trunk from the Canada line to its terminus at Portland. A public house is essential to the wants, development and business of the place.

It would mean a change in conditions that in a few years would be very gratifying to its citizens. It would result in the village, incorporation of the village, pave the way for a water system, and more, for it would enlarge its enterprizes and bring greater progress to the whole town.

How I Earned My Dollar.

This is how Mrs. Mary Canwell earned her dollar for the Norway Methodist contribution and we doubt not many another had equally as strenuous a time to earn a dollar in an unusual way.

I was sitting calmly in my home beside the lake. Wondering over and over, how a dollar I might make.

Looking from my window at the garden green sun neat, I saw hills and hills of cucumbers, almost ready now to eat; Why not peddle cucumbers and earn my dollar? I'll put them in a basket and from house to house I'll go.

Saying, "Cucumbers, cucumbers, who wants to buy? Cucumbers you'd better try."

A fourth of a dollar I soon had made. When other schemes quickly came to my aid; While walking slowly down the street, I found five cents lying right at my feet; I picked it up and into my pocket I went. Surely to help on my dollar it was sent. Now thinking, this is not in my line, But I tried it once and earned a dime. And then I weeded a neighbor's corn. For three long hours all forenoon. And when I counted my money over, I had five and tens and pennies galore, But not enough my dollar to make. And I sat at home beside the lake When a call from the telephone summoned me down.

To wash a wagon for a man in town. I washed the wagon till it shone like glass, And was about to holler, when alas! I lacked three cents of having my dollar. Now every one kindly bear in mind, That three cent jobs are hard to find; But I watched my chance, and it came at last. In the shape of a friend I chanced to pass Who said as a joke, "I'd give three cents if that job was done."

And I did the job with much laughter and fun. And this is how I earned my dollar.

The horse was kept from getting away and wasn't damaged. The occupants of the wagon escaped without serious injury. This horse was frightened by an auto from Poland Springs a few weeks ago and did more or less damage.

Haines and Wright.

Address a Well Attended Political Meeting at South Paris, Friday Evening.

Hon. William T. Haines of Waterville, the gentleman who wanted to be governor but won't these two years because the people were of a different opinion, and Hon. James S. Wright, a well known citizen of South Paris, expounded Republican ideas and principles at New Hall, South Paris, last Friday evening.

Walter L. Gray, esq., presided at the meeting explaining that he had been asked to do so late in the afternoon. Said he couldn't make a speech if he wanted to and should simply introduce the speakers, though he felt they needed no introduction to South Paris people.

Mr. Wright said he supposed he was to tread in the shallow water preparatory to the other speaker who would launch out into deeper water. It is the duty of every citizen to go to the polls and cast his vote for the good of the country. I am not here to abuse anybody but to deal with the issues. Some tell us that there is really not much difference between the policies of the two parties. There is a material difference. Some of the chief issues are whether the great reforms, principles and policies inaugurated by Roosevelt are to be carried forward or to be dropped.

Mr. Wright went forward, dealing on the great achievements of the Republican party, lauding Roosevelt and his policies. For the last 12 years this country has advanced as no other country on the globe. The question of tariff was taken up and carried to a discussion. Judge Taft, if elected, says he must and shall carry out the Roosevelt policies. The Dingley tariff should be revised. Perhaps some of the rates are a little too high but who should revise them, the friends or the enemies? The prohibition question was considered for some time. If the Democrats were in power it would mean license and a saloon on every corner.

Instructions were given on how to vote by the American ballot. A vote for Fernald is a vote for Taft on account of the influence of the report going to the western states. A vote for the Socialist party is a vote in the air. A vote for the Prohibition party is a vote thrown away, for who is there so sensitive they can't put up with the prohibition policies of their government.

Mr. Gray in introducing Mr. Haines said that 17 years ago he entered Colby college and during the time he was there became well acquainted with a certain lawyer and had kept up his acquaintance with him. Had learned to have a high regard for him.

Mr. Haines said he was pleased to come to Oxford county and say what he could to help in this campaign. Said he didn't see much need of holding Republican rallies in this county. We look for a big Republican majority from this county. We know South Paris and Norway is a great Republican community. You appreciate good government.

Mr. Haines said the whole Republican platform was summed up in a few lines written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox that he had read in a magazine:

There are so many Gods
And so many creeds
When just the art of being square
Is all this world needs."

He said that prohibition had been settled as far as he was concerned. "It was settled at Bangor and I was present when it was settled."

Mr. Haines talked of taxation, economy in public expenditures, the equalization of taxation. He told of the special tax commission, how they were appointed, as everything was hurry, hustle and bustle at the legislature and nothing gets a too good consideration. This committee has been working two years and will report at the next legislature.

Skelton and Borah.

The Republican rally at Norway Opera House, Saturday evening, was presided over by Albert J. Stearns, Esq., who with appropriate remarks introduced the speakers, Wm. B. Skelton of Lewiston, state bank examiner, and Hon. William E. Borah, United States senator from Idaho.

The Norway brass band were in attendance and played several selections. Mr. Skelton's speech was devoted to a large extent in an endeavor to explain several things in regard to Maine's financial condition as presented to the public, which he considered in a wrong light by the Waterville Sentinel and speakers of the opposing party.

Figures were given in a general way to show, as he claimed, that the opponents had misstated many things.

He talked of the legislative expenses, salaries, rebated railroads and the Strugs commission.

Senator Borah is an eloquent speaker and mixes considerable wit in with his talk. His talk was entirely on National issues, particularly on "Bryanism" as he termed it.

He gave Bryan credit for being a great man, honest and sincere in the policies he advocated. But he believed that the policies were entirely wrong and would result disastrously if put into practice.

HOUSE WORK

Thousands of American women in their homes are daily sacrificing their lives to duty.

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo. A female weakness or displacement is often brought on and they suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these faithful women that LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND comes as a boon and a blessing, as it did to Mrs. F. Ellsworth, of Mayville, N. Y., and to Mrs. W. P. Boyd, of Beaver Falls, Pa., who say:

"I was not able to do my own work, owing to the female trouble from which I suffered. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me wonderfully, and I am so well that I can do as big a day's work as I ever did. I wish every sick woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, nervous prostration, Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Boston Journal News.

How the Daily Paper Gives Its Readers the Best Reports.

The presidential campaign has become the absorbing topic of the country, and to meet the demand for complete, impartial news The Boston Journal News has special correspondents closely in touch with each of the leading candidates, while every development of the campaign is faithfully followed and brought home to the readers.

James Hay, Jr., will from now until election day write of the Republican candidate's daily life, and will spend his entire time keeping The Journal reader in touch with the daily news from wherever Mr. Taft may be.

John Snare, one of the best-known political writers in Washington, will write for The Journal of the Democratic candidate, and his progress to victory or defeat. He will accompany Mr. Bryan on his entire speaking tour.

J. C. Welliver, who has already attended both conventions for The Journal, will be in daily touch with the national headquarters of both parties in New York, and will write daily of developments at the campaign centers.

Under the direction of W. H. Holden and J. R. Dillaby, the campaign in Boston, Massachusetts and New England is being covered by correspondents representing The Journal in every important center in New England.

With an exciting race for the penman in the big leagues, and the prospect of an early call for candidates for the foot, an interesting fall is promised. The Journal's baseball expert, Arthur McPherson, The Journal's baseball expert, Thomas E. Burke, the great track athlete, with Bob Dunbar's snappy sporty talk, daily help to make The Boston Journal's sporting page the best in New England.

These features, with the women's page, able editorials, and up-to-the-minute financial news, make The Boston Journal the great family paper of New England.

Desiccated Brightness.

Clopped from Our Exchanges.
A woman borrowed eggs of a neighbor when eggs were at twenty-four cents a dozen. She returned the eggs, the same number, when the price had fallen to twelve cents. The question is, has she paid her neighborly debt? Shall the borrower of a cup of molasses, a tablespoonful of butter, a hod of coal, return the loan in kind and quantity, or figure the equivalent in the market price? "Don't borrow."

This present campaign promises to be the cheapest for a quarter of a century, and the remarkable feature is that nobody has yet become interested enough in any of the candidates to put up money for them. The providing of Bryan dollar contribution has failed, and Treasurer Sheldon of the Republican National Committee says that his appeals have brought in only $20,000 so far.

The closing days of August have a tang suggestive of football and fairs and huskings.

In Maine, unlike many other sections of the world, we are assured not only of seed-time for the harvest, but we also know by the past that the Lord of the harvest never has forgotten old Maine yet.

It's the under dog that howls for the peacemaker.

The more you nurse a grievance the faster it will grow.

A physician in a small town got himself into a serious predicament by his inability to remember names and people. One day, while making out a patient's receipt, his visitor's name escaped him. Not at all surprised, as he was so busy, and thinking to get a clue, he asked her whether she spelled her name with an 'e' or 'i'. The lady smilingly replied, "Why doctor, my name is Hill."

Since women have entered the business world like a tidal wave, there is a good deal of questioning going on as to how they are treated.

Half of the complaints that men are rude. The others declare that all men are angels of politeness.

Some clever people have been trying to sum up the situation, and they believe that the girl to whom "hats are off" in the business world, is the one who:

Doesn't wear a hat that attracts unpleasant attention.

Doesn't ogle every man she meets when she is asking him a business question.

Doesn't put paint and powder on her face, instead of plenty of water and cold cream.

Doesn't think it is clever to use the latest slang.

"Politics by injection" is a new description for political rallies.

SOUTH HARRISON.

Mrs. Gilbert H. Tarbox and children, Gilbertine Elodie, Bertha May, and little Master Herbert spent the month of August with their friend, Mrs. E. L. Scribner, of Harrison, returned home to Portland after a very pleasant outing.

Do Not Take Kindly.

Some farmers do not take kindly to President Roosevelt's appointment of a commission to investigate their social, moral and financial condition, and most of them are of the opinion that they can work out their own salvation. Here is a typical letter on the subject from a farmer out in Indiana:

"I don't know anything about the farmers in other States, but I guess we in Indiana are managing to take pretty good care of ourselves. If President Roosevelt should do something to better the conditions of our crops it would be more to the point. I don't believe I could ever get used to ploughing corn in a swallow-tailed coat or milking the cows in a plug hat. When my horses balk, I usually maul them with a clapboard, although it might be more according to the rule of etiquette to reach them a few slaps from Browning. My notion is that the President could find plenty to do if he would try his reforms on a lot of congressmen from the cities. The country congressmen seem to average up about right, but judging from what I saw at the inauguration three years ago, there is as much room for bettering social conditions right under the shadow of the capitol as there is out here in Indiana. We send our children to school, have the daily papers brought to our door, can talk to our neighbors and city cousins by telephone, take a bath when we think we need it and don't think we need a commission to take care of us just yet. Personally I would recommend the President to reserve his commissions for the Indians and white slaves. I like Roosevelt, but think he is too lumpy."

The Honeymoon.

Some thoughtful advice as to the honeymoon suggests that the selection of a companion for the trip be made with care, this giving to the counsel an air of triviality.

Of course, nobody goes on a honeymoon without attention to so obvious a detail.

The honeymoon is a trying period. In the first place misguided friends seek to invest the beginning of it with terror. The rice they throw clings with telltale pertinacity. The spectacle of the hurtling shoe promotes gaiety.

Then, in their eagerness to appear as a hardened married couple, the pair are certain to betray themselves. If spoken to they are frightened as a couple of criminals at the service of a warrant.

At the hotel they are at once "spotted." The clerk unable to do this would never have been a clerk. The instant recognition of their status is annoying.

A honeymooning couple should act natural. To do this is possible. If they could only remember that the mere fact of marriage was in itself not remarkable it would help them.

People are getting married every day. Some have been known to crowd several marriages into a short span of years.

Consumption of Wood.

In 1907 the consumption of wood for pulp exceeded the high-water mark of $,661,176 cords, reached in 1906, by nearly one-third of a million cords, making the total consumption, by 258 mills, 3,862,620 cords. In the previous year, 1906, the consumption of wood for pulp was 3,192,123 cords, which shows that since that time the consumption has increased over three-fourths of a million cords. The figures for 1907 show a large percentage of increase in the consumption of poplar and balsam. Practically all of the former was reduced by the soda process and all of the latter by the sulfite process.

All the other kinds of timber show a normal increase in quantity consumed except the miscellaneous species grouped under the heading "all other." The decrease of nearly 50,000 cords, or 36.5 per cent., in the consumption of this class of timber, however, is apparent rather than real, as it results principally from the fact that cotton-wood was included in "all other" in 1906 but was reported separately in 1907.

WHAT IS RHEUMATISM?

Well Known Remedy That Absolutely Cures This Dread Disease.

No other disease is so painful as rheumatism. Uric Acid crystals are deposited in and about the joints, and that is called rheumatism. The only way in which this painful and dangerous disease can be absolutely cured is with Neuralgic Anodyne, a remedy that has an entirely different action from anything else.

Small doses are taken internally that reach the nerve centers and prevent the formation of Uric Acid. It is also rubbed on the affected parts, quieting and relieving the pain, reducing the rheumatic fever, and restoring health to the aching tissues and muscles.

A large sized bottle of Neuralgic Anodyne costs but 25c, and it is so successful in curing rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, toothache and relieving bruises and sprains that the proprietors, the Twichell-Champin Co., Portland, Me., authorize dealers everywhere to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

NORWAY, MAINE

War has been declared in the Georgia legislature against women employing the "wiles and blandishments" of dress to catch husbands, and if the bill feather by George G. Glenn, representative of Whitefield county, becomes a law, when a man marries in Georgia he will find just what he is getting for the woman will have to appear as she is, without the aid of paint, cosmetics, pads, padding corsets, or any of the devices which women use to make themselves enticing to men.

Experience Proves

Whoever paints any other paint than Devco wastes money. He needn't wait to see how it wears, to find out. He buys more gallons—no matter what price—it takes more money; the painter takes more, too.

Fewer Gallons or No Pay

Paint half of your house with any other paint; paint half with Devco. The other half will take the most gallons. If not, we will make no charge for Devco.

Wears Longer or No Pay

Here's another offer. Paint half of your house with lead-and-oil; the other half with Devco lead-and-zinc. In three years the lead-and-oil half will need repainting, while the Devco half will be about like new. If not, we will give you the paint for the whole house.
